

Chapter 26. Measuring Progress in Chemical Safety: A Guide for LEPCs and TEPCs

Many LEPCs/TEPCs have expanded their activities beyond the requirements of EPCRA, encouraging accident prevention and risk reduction and addressing homeland security in their communities. Composed of representatives from all segments of the community interested in emergency planning and preparedness, LEPCs/TEPCs foster a valuable dialogue among members of the public, industry and government.

The NASTTPO organization developed a guidance document on how LEPCs and TEPCs can measure their progress and determine if the actions they are taking continue to achieve the desired outcomes.

Visit NASTTPO's website for this guidance document at https://www.nasttpo.com/2019%20Documents/measuring_progress_lepc.pdf